1. Purpose

This procedure explains how employees get help from HR, including the HR helpdesk chatbot ("the bot"), and how HR tickets are raised, prioritised and resolved.

2. What the Bot Can Do

- Answer questions about HR policies (leave, attendance, payroll, benefits, conduct, performance, exit and more) based only on the approved HR documents, and show the source policy.
- Show an employee's own leave balance after the employee enters a valid employee ID.
- Raise an HR ticket if it cannot answer, or if the employee asks for it.

3. What the Bot Cannot Do

- It cannot approve leave, change records, or make exceptions to policy.
- It cannot give legal, tax or medical advice. For tax questions, write to payroll@northbridge.example.
- It cannot show another person's personal data, such as leave, salary or ratings.
- It does not handle complaints of sexual harassment, abuse or personal safety. For these, it only shares the contact: icc@northbridge.example. In an emergency or crisis, contact local emergency services, or the free EAP counselling line.

Waiting for Employee	HR needs more information from you. If there is no reply in 5 business days, the ticket is closed.

Closed	The employee confirms or 3 business days pass after resolution. You can reopen within 7 days.

8. Escalation

If a ticket is not responded to within its target time, it is escalated automatically to the HR Operations Lead, and after another business day to the Head of HR. Employees can also ask for an update by quoting the ticket number to hrhelpdesk@northbridge.example.

9. Data Privacy

- Tickets contain only the information needed to resolve the matter, and are visible only to the assigned HR staff.

- The bot stores the question, the employee ID, the time and the ticket status. Avoid sharing sensitive personal information (such as medical details or government ID numbers) in the chat.
